WEBER-LEAF IS NEW ADDITION TO THE MARCUS GROUP, INC.

LITTLE FALLS, NJ – Pamela Weber-Leaf of Glen Ridge, NJ has joined The Marcus Group (www.marcusgroup.com) as an account executive. Weber-Leaf brings more than a dozen years of journalism experience, as well as a background in environmental law, to the agency's public relations division.

Prior to joining The Marcus Group, Weber-Leaf was managing editor of North Jersey Media Group's (201) magazine. Earlier, she spent five years covering environmental issues, as well as state and local governments, at two dailies: the Herald News in West Paterson, NJ and the Journal News in White Plains, NY. She also served as section editor at the Daily Record in Parsippany, and has worked as a policy analyst at the Natural Resources Defense Council in New York.

Weber-Leaf holds a degree in English Literature from Yale University, New Haven, CT. She later received her J.D. and master's degree in Environmental Law from Vermont Law School, South Royalton, VT.

The Marcus Group, Inc. is a full-service advertising, public relations and crisis management agency. Founded in 1970, The Marcus Group provides award-winning strategic communication services to a diverse group of commercial and not-for-profit clients.
